“ Aari'yah when I watched you take your last breath I knew, there was to be no more suffering for you. Adam when I woke to see you had fled this place, I knew you were seeing God's smiling face. But the day's I had to bury you two was living hell for me, so bad that now there's days that I struggle to even breathe. Every single day I wake and come to the unbearable truth, that you're no longer here and your absences are proof. At times it's a war to even get out of bed, I simply cannot accept that my babies are dead. Others I feel you're both with me still, and I now accept that not everything goes according to God's will. 💔😭💔😭💔😭💔😭💔

“ Missing you both too much on this mother's day, the pain has never gone away. 21 years of missing you Adam, now Aari'yah too it's so hard to even fathom. There are days that I cannot even breathe, it's too hard to be happy through all this grief. I miss you both way too much, and it's sucks to feel like my son is a crutch. Matthew is my reason for living at this time, for him the love I feel is truly sublime. Josh Green grew up became a man and moved away, yet I will love him until my dying day. When half of me can no longer attain, and the other half still remains, it's like the weight of the world is mine to carry, after the 2 beautiful children that I have had to bury. 1 son of 3 and now too my only daughter, I feel as if I'm drowning in the deepest of water. My body's a prison and I want to break free, to be with my children for eternity. 💔😭💔😭💔😭💔

“ I can't find the me that I once was, but I know that I must, mould a new me yet again, cause this is not yet my end. Everything about me now feels wrong, and I know that it's because you are both gone. My crazy, beautiful only girl, you were a massive part of my entire world. As I sit here now in your room, all of these memories are coming through. My mind is a maze of wonders and thoughts, of things that for you were never even got. You deserved to see Disney World and Make A Wish denied you, hopefully they regret that decision that they made now too. I wanted so much better for you my girl, than just all those festival rides like the tilt-a-whirl. I'll never feel that enough was done for you, that's just how I'll feel now my life through. Grief works in weird ways sometimes, and it's not something anyone can fight. Depending on the level of pain, grief takes many different courses in many different ways. Right now my pain is the worst upon this earth, because to 2 that I gave birth, death came too soon, and a huge part of me is now gone forever too. My heart is broken and shattered to pieces, even with knowing that you both now walk with Jesus. I'm full of regrets, despair, and pain, that will now never leave til my dying day.

That I pray for more than anything in this horrible world. I love you baby girl. More than any words can ever describe. Take care of your brother for me as I know he will take care of you. “ Aari'yah your brother started his first day today at his new school. I decided that without you here he needed to be around other kids. I miss you so much my sweet baby girl. This has taught me a very hard lesson... No matter how hard I fight to protect my kids... I cannot prevent death ever. I understand that death is the enemy and wish it had never been created. Missing you til I see you again beautiful. Love forever your mommy
