“Charlotte was a very kind, loving person. She had a spark of joy about her. I am a better person for having known her. She always brought joy and laughter with her wherever she went. She had so many talents ... she helped me with my sewing machine, and we shared a love of making porcelain dolls! We both shared our Registered nursing profession and knowledge with one another. Thank you to my bother for sharing Charlotte with me and all our family, she will be missed and continued to be loved by those whose lives she touched. She handled these last few years of illness with such fortitude and grace. May the angels come to greet her. 🥹❤️

Very nice pat, I have heard kind words about you. I met charlotte “midge” to me , at church. Our husbands died within two months of each other and in the 3 yrs after we spent part of most weekends there gather, she could get tickets to the symphony so we would alternate driving down to that event together , she will be so missed by so many because to know midge was to love her and she invariably gave back more. Well said about how she handled her illnesses, no complaints, never needed or wanted sympathy. Extremely rare virtue!! I will never forget my last visit with her at hospice, looking up at me like she had so much to say, but obviously didn't have enough strength to talk much. My love and sympathy goes out to Shannon, sherry and Dave, I know it's a terrible loss to those who were even closer than we friends were. What a gift, what a treasure, I will never forget her or the good times we had together. Rip midge!!

“ I spent time in Las Vegas with Charlotte and we went to a piano bar. Let's just say that the chocolate martinis were wonderful and we were all feeling great.
