“ It's times like rn I found myself in shambles and confused brokenhearted and sad mostly that to find comfort I've searched my mother's name to be reminded of her in someway that it might help so I'm not normally the type to show grief or feelings publicly and asother always says the dead know nothing and her spirit is with the lord rejoice and be glad in it so this is just for me to hopefully relieve some of this heart ache I'm feeling so much tonight I've been ok for the most part but Judy who was my mother's good friend for many years her daughter recently lost her husband unexpectedly but they came by tonight and she had with her her daughter Nicki whom I grew up with since little kids but she had with her also her two daughters that are young idk maybe 12 and 6 I'd guess was so kind to give me a ride to the gas station but while driving mentioned her loss of her husband and I was sitting in the back of the SUV next to her daughters and I could faintly hear a soft something and realized the older of the two daughters was crying just the slightest and it terribly broke my heart for her being a young teen and losing her father I can't imagine how I'd felt at that age so I'm not by any means good at words or attempting to make anyone feel better I just said that it's hard and it's going on 5-6 years since Edna my mom has passed and and it doesn't get easier and that I miss her very much and that we were so very close were was called the trilogy my "Granny Paula my mom Edna and me was always together and did everything together to have lost both of them especially since they are my best friends and loved ones makes it just a bit harder on nights like this I want to tell them everything and most of all I miss their voices and all the remarks and comment's they make even if I know what they would probably more than likely say something like " snap out of it whipper doodle snap and while granny would pinch my cheek and mom clapping her hands as hard and loud as she can yelling raw hide or something of the effects lol 😭 that I should be happy because I know they are with our lord and I too will join them when my time comes" yet still I'm sad and scared of this life wishing that something would come to light a path for me to see what it is that I seem to be emptied from and to finale have a stable place in life to any affect for myself so even tho I'm rambling there is a memory in there I do feel a bit better I think so one day at a time and pray for me" even tho I'm a reclusive loner mostly I miss everyone a lot and I do think about y'all too life is definitely a tough one but I love all my family and friends my mother would be happy I think to know I could find a little bit of peace here" 💔😭👍🌟🙏
