“ We lived across Glengyle Street in Beech Grove from Ed, Patty, Pam and Greg in the late 50s/early 60s. My dad and Patty's dad worked together at Lilly's and were friends. Small world when we found that out. Greg was about the same age as our oldest daughter, and all the kids played together. A dead-end street was an ideal spot for their safety. The most memorable thing about Greg was that he was totally obsessed with his pie plate/Frisbee/whatever round object he could find. That was his "driver," and he would spend hours making motor noises and moving along, slaloming or racing, back and forth. Will and I are so happy that he was able to indulge that passion. We are sorry to read of his early passing, but at least one old neighboring family is happy that he must have been pretty content with his life. Best wishes to you, Ed, and you, Pam. We corresponded for a while a few years back and had a good time on Memory Lane.
