“ One of my favorite memories of Mom was probably the first time I met her and Dad. Mike took me over to their house to watch the first moonwalk on TV. As we all, Mike, his dad and I watched and this historic event , Mom was beside us at the dining room table reading the paper and impressed. At the climactic moment of the walk... the big moment Mom said "George they have tomato plants on sale this weekend". Dad said who cares about tomato plants at a time like this? I thought it was hysterical but I was the only one who laughed. My second favorite memory is when we had Dad for dinner one evening as Mom was in Connecticut out of town. He talked about the first time he picked her up for a date and seeing her as she came to the door in a white dress. He said "she was the cutest thing I'd ever seen!"

Every time I saw her in the last many months she would always end with I'm very lucky. She felt she had had a blessed life and I would have to agree. While at the same time she blessed us.

“ When Grammy had just had the stroke about a month ago and was still in ICU, family had placed a rosary in the hand she could move. I came early Sunday morning to visit and wasn't sure if I would even find her there. She was setting off the alarm on her IV because she was trying to say her rosary with the sign of the cross and kissing the cross. It was her pattern. At times when she was barely conscious we would notice her moving her lips and realize she was trying to say the prayers of the rosary. I realize now that even times we weren't there she was never alone.
