“ I knew Jack in the latter part of his life, meeting while working on a house next door to his. After doing work for Jack over a period of years, we became friends which also extended to my family. We had many conversations about faith, Jesus's soon coming, and home projects. I enjoyed our occasional lunches at his kitchen table, Christmas cards through the mail (all credit to my wife), and the occasional phone call or text after he moved back up north. I was always impressed with Jack's ability to maintain his home at his age and knew him as a man of wisdom and a wealth of knowledge. Jack left a lasting impression on me, my wife, and daughter, and will be missed. The garden tools you left me when you moved get a daily workout and are a reminder of the generosity you shared with us. You are home now and we will see you again some day. Our thoughts and prayers go out to his family. Sincerely, the Smith Family
