“ I fell of a bicycle when I was 5, skinned my knee up good and got a rock embedded in it. I was across the street from Patsy's and bawling my eyes out. My sister Tammy was near by and she helped me over to Patsy's. Pat scooped me up (as she always did) and started to clean me up. Then I noticed she put the tweezers in a pot of boiling water! I started bawling again. But she so gently and tenderly removed that rock and then put her arms around me and wiped my tears away. I had a little scar there on my knee for many years. Outside of my mama there was never a more loving place then nestled up to Patsy. I love her so much. So grateful I was able to see her this past June. We had our last hug. RIP Patsy. RIP.

“ My dear friend Pat,
This is not goodbye for we will meet again. If there really are 'mansions' over there, save the one next to you for me. I'll be along soon and we will 'catch up' again as we always do.

"You ask me how I know she lives, she lives within my heart".
