“ I wish I could really put into words how silly and fun Ralph was. My memories of him are almost all of him joking and teasing. My favorite thing was how he would raise his shoulders, point and snicker his little mocking laugh after messing with somebody. I will never forget “do my feet” and “the little liar” There are always memories that aren’t so great about everyone. I can’t say that when I think of Ralph. I haven’t even ever seen him be mad or anything without wanting to take his side and in the time I’ve known him he’s had reason to act ugly but he never left that image in my mind. Ralph was good man who took good care of his family, especially his wife. There wasn’t anything ugly about him. Anytime I think of him it will always be welcome memories. I will miss that crazy old man. I’m so sorry because him being gone really is a loss.
