Just the hint of wings beginning to unfurl. The gentle soul lies sleeping, waits for the call of the Maker. Wings just beginning to lift, ready to float, to glide. Time stands still, waits for the wind of the Spirit. Wings growing stronger, ready to fly, to soar. The heart still clings to life, waits for the call of departure. The Maker gently whispers, 'Time to come home.' Wings raised, poised for flight, and the soul leaves behind the Earth, flies into the arms of its Maker.
